The Arthur Wood referred to in the letter was ARTHUR FREDERICK WOOD, who was elected an U.M. in 1928, and was head of the Brokerage Firm of Mortim~~ore~~er, Phillips & Co., afterwards taken over by Durtnell & Fowler.

His uncle, Sir James Leigh-Wood, of the banking firm of Brown Bros. & Co. and/or Brown, Shipley & Co., Founders Court, Lothbury, E.C.2, purchased the business of Mortim~~ore~~er, Phillips for his nephew, Arthur Frederick Wood.

Mr. Wood was one of Lloyd's characters. He was a bit of a wag, together with K.G.P. He was also a Liberal Candidate and was known in the Room as "Stiffy" Wood because of the old-fashioned stiff linen collar on his long neck, visible a long way off. On one occasion he was involved in a "firework" incident and was reprimanded by the late Sir Percy MacKinnon.

Mr. Wood was killed in a motor car accident in 1933. He left Lloyd's one evening in a sports car, and on the Great West Road he ran into the back of a lorry without lights. He was decapitated and his widow brought an action against the lorry owners resulting in damages of about £25,000 being awarded.
